I am extremely pleased to release Volume III of the Suffolk County Data Book, Suffolk County: A Place to Enjoy. In 1982 I asked the Suffolk County Planning Department to prepare a general data book for use by our citizens and those interested in the County. The first volume, entitled Suffolk County: A Place to Work was released in March of 1982 and covered demographic, cultural, civic, economic and general government information on a countywide basis. This was followed with Volume II, Suffolk County: A Place to Live. This volume clearly proved that the variety of facilities and opportunities truly make Suffolk County one of the most splendid settings for human settlement.

This final edition, Suffolk County: A Place to Enjoy pays particular attention to the history and culture of our great County and specifically identifies those features that add to the quality of life. They include our parks, sports, recreation and leisure activities, tourism opportunities and issues of conservation and the environment. This completes the three volume set. I am sure, as I stated in Volume 2, that the readers will agree with me that Suffolk County is truly blessed.

INTRODUCTION

Suffolk County: A Place to Enjoy is the third of a three volume series which will replace the traditional Suffolk County Catalogue. The Suffolk County Planning Department produced three previous editions of the County Catalogues in 1964, 1970 and 1975.

Suffolk County: A Place to Enjoy is designed for Suffolk's residents and visitors. The volume contains information that will enable the reader to become aware of the facilities and attractions located within the County. Information concerning the following subjects has been compiled for this volume: history, culture, parks facilities, sports, recreation, crafts, hobbies, shopping, lodging and conservation.

The first volume, Suffolk County: A Place to Work was published in 1982 and Suffolk County: A Place to Live was published in 1983.

HISTORY AND CULTURE

Suffolk County is a haven for culture and is steeped in history. Museums abound, live theatre and concerts are performed every weekend, and art galleries with changing exhibits are open to the public daily.

The museums range from small one room collections of specific subjects such as the 1901 Depot Restoration in Lindenhurst with its local railroad artifacts, to the Vanderbilt Museum in Centerport with a manor house, fish house and planetarium.

Historic sites, which mark Suffolk's rich colonial history, are scattered throughout the county. An example is Nathan Hale rock in Halesite, which is the site where the British apprehended Nathan Hale for treason in 1776. There are many points of interest such as the Stony Brook Post Office with its decorative mechanical eagle whose wings flap at 12:00 noon.

There are public and private art galleries with scheduled exhibits and shows. And most weekend evenings will have at least one concert for the lovers of symphonies, chorus, band, jazz ensembles or chamber music. Local theatre and dance companies provide live performances throughout the year.

Suffolk has something for everyone.

HISTORY

Suffolk County has been profoundly influenced by its proximity to New England and New York City, and by the sea which defines its borders on three sides.

Occupying the eastern two-thirds of Long Island, which juts 120 miles into the Atlantic, the county covers over 900 square miles of territory. It is 86 miles long and 20 miles at its widest point. The weather is temperate, the water abundant and the soil good. From the beginning there has existed a variety of conditions which have made this land good for all manner of living things.

Suffolk's heritage is based on a procession of all kinds of people over the past 10,000 years from indians, explorers, pirates and colonists to invading armies, whalers, railroad men, bootleggers, spacemen and commuters. Today a cosmopolitan mixture of 1,300,000 people live here.

The first nomadic hunters came to Suffolk in the last glacial period when they followed caribou herds traveling south from Connecticut. At that time Long Island and the mainland of Connecticut were separated by only low-lying marshland. This area is now covered by the Long Island Sound.

With the passing of time and the warming of the earth, the glacier receded northward. The place we call Suffolk became home to thinking people who used tools, worked, and raised families before the first Kingdoms of Egypt were founded.

The first known Old World men to sight Long Island were with Verrazano, who sailed along the south shore in 1524. In 1614 Adrian Block, a Dutch explorer, was the first to touch the land here when he went ashore at Montauk and met local Indians.

Of Long Island's thirteen Indian tribes, eight roamed wholly within Suffolk County and two tribes partly so. Along the south shore, the Mameaquages overlapped into Amityville. To the east lived the Secataugs as far as Blue Point and to their east as far as Eastport lived the Unkechaugs, including the Poosapatucks. From Eastport to Bridgehampton were the Shinnecocks, then eastward on the tip of the southern fork the Montauk Indians. During the time of Suffolk's first settlements, Wyandanch, the Montauk Chief, was the Grand Sachem of all the indians.

Shelter Island and neighboring islands were the habitat of the Manhansets. The Corchaugs, on the north fork claimed land from Orient Point westward to Wading River, the Setaukets dwelling westward from there to Stony Brook. The Nessaquages occupied present Smithtown and the Matinecocs inhabited the area westward to the East River.

The settlers secured the permission of the Grand Sachem as well as that of the local chief (from whom they purchased their land) to make settlements. The Setauket area was purchased for 10 coats, 12 hoes, 12 hatchets, 50 small awls, 100 needles, 6 kettles, 10 fathoms of wampum, 7 pipebowls of powder, 1 pair of children's stockings, 10 pounds of lead and 10 knives.

Today there are two existing Indian reservations in Suffolk County, the Poosapatuck in Brookhaven Town and the Shinnecock in Southampton Town.

The first resident landowner in the County was Lion Gardiner who received manorial rights to Gardiner's Island in 1639 and immediately located there. It was here, approximately 60 years later, that Captain Kidd buried his pirated treasure.

The first small bands of settlers came from the New York and Connecticut areas. Dutch villages sprang up on the western end of Long Island; English settlements in Suffolk. A power struggle between England and the Netherlands was settled in 1650 with a north-south line, an international boundary, dividing existing colonies in New England and Long Island. On Long Island the line ran approximately where the western border of Suffolk County now exists. Suffolk was English territory. Settlements of the period included Gardiner's Island, Southold, Southampton, Shelter Island, East Hampton and Huntington.

Following the English conquest of New Netherlands in 1664, at a convention in Hempstead which enacted the Duke's Laws by which the new province of New York should be governed, the province was divided into three Ridings. Future Suffolk County comprised the East Riding and its western border was identical with that prescribed in 1650.

In 1683, when Ridings were abandoned and the province of New York was re-divided into twelve counties, the East Riding became Suffolk County. By then there were seven townships in this area, two of which (Southold and Southampton) had been in existence for 43 years.

In 1648 nine families, mostly from Southampton, founded the Town of East Hampton and nine years later it was extended eastward to include Montauk.

In 1652 Shelter Island was settled. The little island was first granted town privileges in 1666 but not until 1683 was it designated a town and not before 1730 were town officials elected.

The Town of Huntington dates its founding from 1653 when Richard Holbrook, Robert Williams and Daniel Whitehead purchased a tract of land in the north-western part thereof. Subsequent purchases during the next fifty years expanded the town area from the Sound to the Atlantic Ocean. In 1872 the southern portion became the Town of Babylon.

In 1655 the Town of Brookhaven was established along the north shore from Stony Brook to Port Jefferson. Additional land acquisitions in succeeding years rounded out the present town. Patchogue and its environs became a part of the town in 1773.

The Town of Smithtown dates back to 1663 when Richard Smith received a land bequest from Lion Gardiner to whom it had been given by Chief Wyandanch. In 1665 a town patent was granted to Richard Smith.

The Town of Islip was founded in 1710 following a series of large land grants, the first to William Nicoll in 1684 covering the eastern part of the town. Before 1703, when Bay Shore and Brightwaters were granted to John Mowbray, brothers Thomas and Richard Willett had received the site of West Islip, Stephen Van Courtland the tract to the east known as Sagtikos Manor and Andrew Gibb what is now the village of Islip.

The Town of Riverhead was formed as a town from the westerly part of Southold Town in 1792. As early as 1727 it had been recognized as the County Seat when the County courthouse and jail were located there. In 1759 Riverhead became the regular meeting place of the Board of Supervisors.

The colonial period from 1650 to 1775 was a peaceful time. Wild places and woodlands were turned to farms, and rough log shelters were improved to relatively comfortable homes. Churches, roads, grist mills, and shipyards were built. It was a time of hard physical labor but here was land and homesites for most all who were willing to work.

The open plains in the Hempstead and Montauk areas made Long Island the Texas of that time. It is estimated there were 100,000 horned cattle and even more sheep. Long Island was vital to New York City, supplying grain, meat, fish, and cordwood.

Taxation was the cause which pushed peaceful farmers to first grumble, then rebel, and finally, break with England.

Long Island was sharply divided in 1776 regarding independence from the Crown. About 80% of the people in Suffolk were committed to the Patriot cause, but this fervor diminished as one went toward New York City.

The disastrous defeat of the Americans at the Battle of Long Island in 1776 exposed the patriots in Suffolk to seven years of suffering under the occupation of British, Hessian, and Tory troops, supported by the mighty British Navy. The heavy commitment of forces reflected that New York City was the keystone of British plans to isolate New England from the middle Atlantic colonies and Long Island was the storehouse to feed and supply the City's garrison and naval forces.

Without patriot troops for protection the people here resisted--individually and in small bands--with ingenuity and daring. They spied, burned stores, engaged in illicit trade, helped whale boat raiders from New England, and harassed the occupation troops. But not without heavy sacrifices in farms and property destroyed, families broken, and lives lost. They acted knowing the consequences and they paid the price.

Nathan Hale is the best known of Washington's spies but others were operating throughout the Revolution. Indeed, Suffolk was the center of the famed Culper espionage ring which kept General Washington informed of British activities in New York City. Information was carried by rider out to Setauket and then across Long Island Sound to Connecticut by whale boat. From there it was relayed to the American forces in Westchester.

Peace was finally negotiated and the occupation troops--British and Hessian--departed in 1783. Suffolk was a devastated land but the returning exiles and patriot soldiers went to work restoring homes, farms, and shipping. The sea and the land yielded their bounty and prosperity returned.

The War of 1812 intruded briefly on decades of peace. British frigates patrolled Long Island Sound and seized coastal sloops carrying the produce and cordwood of Suffolk bound for New York City. There were no land actions of which to speak.

In 1834 men of industry, engineers and financiers, were looking for a quick railroad transportation route from New York to Boston. An engineering survey declared the Connecticut coastal route "impassable" because of the rugged hills and many rivers to cross. But, on the map between the two cities lay Long Island, flat and cheap. And so was born that noble institution, the Long Island Railroad! Tracks were laid from the East River to the east end of the county where a ferry took passengers and freight to Connecticut and then by train to Boston. The Long Island Railroad right-of-way went right down the middle of the island with no regular local stops except to take on wood and water. It is ironic that the world's largest local railroad began with absolutely no thought of service to the people of Long Island.

Through trains ran the length of the Island as early as 1841 but not without trouble. Local residents did not like the noisy engines which frightened livestock and sent soot and hot embers spewing over home, fields and woodlots.

Farmers complained but to no avail. Their frustration led to violence. Depots were burned, train crews ambushed, rails loosened, and tracks soaped to slow down the "march of progress." These efforts were no more successful than latter day attempts to stop jet traffic.

What did bring a change in the Long Island Railroad's attitude was the completion of a direct rail connection between New York and Boston along the "impassable" Connecticut shore route in 1850. Suddenly the Long Island was a railroad without purpose and no place to go. Its tracks were in the middle of the island and all its potential local customers were settled along the shore.

In a short span of years, some twenty separate railroads came on the scene to connect people with the main line. It was a jumble of wheeling and dealing, violence, and conflict that reflected--in microcosm--what was happening all across the nation. Suffolk was moving from an isolated agrarian society toward its place in an interdependent, industrial economy.

As the railroad took its first steps, another of our principal industries, whaling, was reaching its heyday. By 1840 the offshore whaling which Indians and settlers had practiced had expanded to a world-wide search for the great beasts. Ships sailed from Cold Spring Harbor, Sag Harbor and Greenport, returning three years later with precious cargoes of oil, wax and bone. The bottom dropped out of the whale oil industry when petroleum was brought in by Colonel Drake. Whaling declined, but not before the seafaring ruffians and salty captains had added their imprint to our heritage.

The lure of the sea, aided by a railroad looking for customers, soon established Suffolk's hallmark as an ideal place for recreational escape for sailing and bathing at the county's famous beaches. By the turn of the century a network of stagecoach, trolley and excursion boat lines linked the LIRR to large seaside hotels where "city folks" could spend two weeks rocking on the front porch. This was perhaps the last sedentary vacation Americans enjoyed, for the greatest change agent was at hand, the automobile.

By the second decade of the Twentieth Century county dirt roads were accomodating automobiles. First a rich man's toy, they permitted exploration and then establishment of "castles" for the wealthy on the North Shore. Later, cars drove middle class working families east to vacation homes which eventually became year-round settlements.

A roadside culture of refreshment stands, filling stations and quick food eateries developed as asphalt and concrete roads pushed out from population centers. The forerunner of modern superhighways was also founded here in 1908 with the opening of Motor Parkway built by William K. Vanderbilt.

In the early 1900's, the county's flat, open spaces, and its location between New York City and Europe, made it a natural center for efforts to establish cross-Atlantic aviation and "wireless" communication. Grumman and other aviation pioneers made this a major center of aircraft production serving the nation through two World Wars and in its pioneering ventures to the Moon and beyond.

Suffolk County's heritage has been built on the daring of people as diverse as Benedict Arnold and Nathan Hale; as artistic as Walt Whitman and William Sidney Mount; and as industrious and inventive as Tesla, Marconi, and Einstein. Some were lifetime residents; others came for just a summer and did their greatest work here.

The steady population growth, especially in recent years, came not from daring deeds nor artistic genius. Rather it has been based on thousands upon thousands of people deciding that Suffolk was the place to make a home and raise a family. Our progress as a county will continue so long as this is true.

ORIGINS OF THE NAMES OF SUFFOLK COUNTY PLACES

Long Island: First explored extensively by the Dutch navigator Adrian Block in 1614, it was originally called the Island of Nassau, after the royal family of the Netherlands. But many mariners referred to it as "long island," because of its size and shape. By the 1630s, official English documents called it "Long Isle", or "Long Island."

Suffolk County: From Suffolk County, England, northeast of London.

Amagansett: Algonquin for either "neighborhood of the fishing place" or a "a place with wells."

Amityville: Originally called "Huntington South, West Neck," when Babylon Town was part of Huntington. Legend has it the post office complained the name was too confusing. A meeting was held to choose a new name. There were arguments. One man stood up saying, "What this meeting needs is a littly amity," Hence, Amityville.

Aquebogue: From the Montauk Indian word Ukquebaug, meaning "land from the head of the bay."

Asharoken: The name of the Matinecock Indian chief who, in 1653, signed the first land purchase agreement with white settlers in Huntington Town.

Babylon Town: From the biblical city.

Baiting Hollow: An area where early settlers gave livestock food and drink. Baiting is an archaic English term, meaning to feed.

Bayport: Once called Middle Road. The name changed in the mid-19th Century when the area became a resort community.

Bay Shore: First called Penataquit, Indian for, perhaps, either "at the crooked creek" or "at the crooked tree." When a mill was built, it became Mechanicsville. Bay Shore was chosen as a name in the 19th Century to attract summer tourists.

Belle Terre: French for "beautiful land," named about 1900 by rich New York City people who put up big summer houses there. The old name, Mt. Misery.

Bellport: After brothers Thomas and John Bell, who founded the village in the early 19th Century.

Blue Point: For blue haze over Great South Bay.

Brentwood: Originally settled in 1842 as a utopian community called Modern Times. About 20 years later, new settlers from Essex County, England, wanted nothing to do with utopian idealism and renamed it Brentwood after a town in their home area.

Brightwaters: Called Manetuck by the Indians, meaning "a swamp with coniferous trees." In 1880, Charles E. Phelps bought most of the area. His daughter, Maud, is said to have suggested the new name after seeing the sparkling ponds in the area.

Calverton: Named for Bernard J. Calvert, the settlement's first postmaster in 1868.

Centerport: In the center, between Huntington village and Northport. Until the mid-19th Century, it was called Little Cow Harbor.

Central Islip: Originally called Thompson's Station for the Thompson family who owned Sagtikos Manor in West Islip. Changed about 1900 to correspond with the name of the new mental hospital.

Commack: Indian for "pleasant land."

Copiague: Indian for "place of shelter."

Coram: The Indian name was Moncorum, meaning "a passage between the hills."

Cutchogue: From the Indian word meaning "greatest or principal place."

Dix Hills: Named after Dick Pechegan, an Indian who lived in the area in the 1690s.

East Northport: Originally called Clay Pitts. The name was changed for the new railroad station built after the Civil War. It was actually south of the old Northport station. But residents evidently felt "South Northport" sounded ridiculous.

East Hampton: East of Southampton, which was settled earlier. The first residents came from Lynn, Mass., and called it Maidstone, for the town in Kent County, England, where many had originated.

East Marion: For Revolutionary War Gen. Francis Marion, nicknamed "The Old Swamp Fox."

Elwood: Origin unknown, came into common use in the 1860s. Earlier it was called East Dix Hills.

Farmingdale: Originally called Hardscrabble, meaning infertile land, by its 18th Century settlers. About 100 years later, residents changed the name to make the community sound more pleasant.

Farmingville: First called Bald Hills. The name was changed in the latter half of the 19th Century, probably to describe the nearby farming area.

Fire Island: From the Dutch "Fier Island," or four islands. In the 17th Century, those islands were located just inside what is now Fire Island Inlet. The long barrier beach now named Fire Island was called Great South Beach by the early settlers.

Ft. Salonga: For George Slongo, Philadelphia contractor who built a British fort in the Revolution.

Gardiner's Island: For the Gardiner family, which has owned the island for more than 300 years.

Great River: For the nearby Connetquot River.

Halesite: Where patriot spy Nathan Hale may have landed after crossing Long Island Sound from Connecticut, disguised as a Dutch school teacher.

Hauppauge: Indian for "flooded land." Originally a settlement of about 40 houses, founded by the Wheeler family and called Wheeler Settlement.

Holbrook: For Richard E. Holbrooke, who purchased land from the Secatogue Indians in 1767.

Holtsville: Called Waverly Station by original settlers, changed in 1897 to honor Joseph Holt, U.S. postmaster general from 1859 to 1861.

Huntington: From the English town where Oliver Cromwell was born. Cromwell ruled England as Lord Protector when Huntington was settled in 1653. In the 18th Century, the English town changed its name to "Huntingdon."

Huntington Station: Once called Fairgrounds for a racetrack and fairgrounds built there about 1800. The name changed when the railroad came in 1867.

Islip Town: After Islip, England.

Islip Terrace: The area north of, or above, Islip.

Jamesport: Named for James Tuttle, who built the first home in the area.

Kings Park: Named for mental hospital built there just before the turn of the century. Originally owned by the City of Brooklyn, the hospital was first known as the Kings County Insane Asylum. It was later changed to Kings Park.

Lake Grove: Named in 1842 for the groves of trees near Lake Ronkonkoma. It had earlier been called West Middle Island and then New Village.

Lindenhurst: Settled in the 19th Century by German immigrants and first called Breslau for a city in Germany. Later changed to "Linden" from trees on Berlin's "Unter den Linden," "hurst" meaning woods, added on to make it sound more English.

Lloyd Harbor: After Henry Lloyd, who built a home in 1711 which still stands, Indians called it Caumsett, meaning "neighborhood of a sharp rock."

Manorville: Once part of the lands of St. George's Manor in Brookhaven Town.

Mastic: Indian word meaning "great tidal river."

Mattituck: Disputed origin, from Indian words for either "place without wood" or "great creek."

Melville: Origin unknown, first used in the 1840s. Early settlers called it Sweet Hollow. Indian name was Sunquam, possibly for "stinking hole."

Miller Place: Founded in 1761 by Andrew Miller, son of John Miller, an East Hampton pioneer.

Montauk: Indian, derivation disputed. It may come from Manatuck, "a place of observation," or from Meantauket, "great, fortified town."

Moriches: For one-time Indian owner Meritche.

Mt. Sinai: Once called Old Man's, for a rest house run by an old man. Renamed by residents who said the ground was so rocky it reminded them of the mount where Moses received the Commandments.

Nesconset: From the Indian, Nasseconset, meaning "at or near the second [stream] crossing."

New Suffolk: Perhaps named by early settlers who had come from Suffolk County, England.

Nissequogue: Indian for "clay or mud country."

Northport: Called Cow Harbor by 17th Century settlers because the Huntington/Northport harbor complex, with four inlets, or legs, resembles a cow. Name changed in the 19th Century, allegedly because residents thought Cow Harbor made them sound like country bumpkins.

Noyack: From the Indian word "naiag" or "naiyag," meaning a corner. It takes its name from the long point of land now known as Jessup's Neck.

Oakdale: Origin obscure. Until the mid-19th Century, it was known as Connetquot, an Indian word meaning "at the long river."

Old Field: The name, which dates to the mid-17th Century, may have been given by settlers who cleared newer fields on nearby Strong Neck. Indians called the area Cataconnock, meaning "great fields."

Orient: Indians called it Poquatuck, or "clear, open tidal river." The first English settlers, in 1661, called it Oysterponds. Changed to Orient in 1836, signifying the easternmost point of the North Fork.

Patchogue: Pochaug Indians once lived there.

Peconic: Indian for "a small plantation."

Poquott: Indian for "open country."

Port Jefferson: Called Souwasset by the Indians, meaning "place of small pines." Early settlers named it Drowned Meadow. In 1831 residents change it to Port Jefferson, in honor of third president.

Quogue: A shortening of the Indian word Quaquanantuck, or "shaking or trembling marsh."

Remsenburg: Named in 1895 for a local landowner, Dr. Charles Remsen.

Riverhead: It is at the head of the Peconic River.

Rocky Point: The name, describing the area, was first mentioned in local records in 1755.

Ronkonkoma: Some say it comes from Indian words meaning "white sand pond." Another possibility is that it means "a boundary fishing place."

Sag Harbor: The harbor of Sagaponack.

Sagaponack: An Indian name meaning "where the big round nuts grow."

St. James: Named after St. James Episcopal Church, built in the early 19th Century.

Sayville: Once known alternatively as Edwardsville and Greenville, for two large land-owning families. A local schoolteacher suggested the undisputed name "Seaville" and residents agreed. But when a clerk checked the spelling, he looked at an old Bible, which used the archaic form "say" for "sea."

Selden: At one time called Westfield. Some say it was named in honor of a lawyer who proposed to give the area a benefaction. He never did.

Setauket: First settlement in Brookhaven Town. Indian meaning was "land at the mouth of a river."

Shelter Island: called Manhasset by the Indians, meaning "an island sheltered by islands."

Shinnecock: Indian for "level land or country."

Shirley: Named after 20th Century land developer Walter Shirley.

Shoreham: Once called Woodville. Probably renamed after an English coastal town.

Smithtown: Formerly Smithfield, it was named after Richard Smith, one of the founders of the town.

Southampton: Named in 1640 in honor of Henry Wrothsley, Earl of Southampton.

Southold: Indians called it Yennicock, or "extensive land." The present name is a variant of Southwold, England, home town of the Rev. John Youngs, leader of the original 1640 settlers.

Speonk: Indian for "edge or border of a stream."

Stony Brook: From a small stream called Memamusuck by the Indians, perhaps meaning "a brook connecting two ponds."

Tuckahoe: Named for a variety of root eaten by Indians in the area.

Upton: From Camp Upton, a World War I army training center, now the site of Brookhaven National Laboratory. The camp was named after Civil War Gen. Emory Upton.

Water Mill: In 1644 the first water mill in eastern Long Island was built there.

Wainscott: Taken from a method of preparing oak timbers by first soaking the wood. The work was done there in the 17th Century.

Wading River: From the Indian Pauquamsuck, "the brook or outlet where we wade for clams."

West Islip: Called Secatogue by the Indians, meaning "dark or black-colored land."

West Sayville: Until the turn of the century, the area nearest Great South Bay was called Tuckertown, and the upland area, Greenville, after two prominent local families.

Wheatley Heights: A modern name, chosen in the 1970s by people who no longer wanted to consider themselves residents of Wyandanch.

Wyandanch: Named after Wyandance, or Wyandanch, a Montauk chieftan who was a great leader of his people. The name means wise man.

Yaphank: Indian for "bank of a river."

PARKS

The largest parks in Suffolk County, encompassing over 40,000 acres, are owned by the United States, New York State, and Suffolk County. Of the 40,000 acres of parkland, 29,000 acres are in fully or partially developed parks.

Brief descriptions of the facilities, activities, and access requirements for the federal, state and county parks are followed by a list of the major parks by town. The parks list includes the name, location, acreage, ownership and facilities available for each federal, state, and county park in Suffolk County.

The ten town governments own 6,000 acres of developed parkland and the villages and park districts own over 1,100 developed acres. Most town and village parks are open to their respective residents for free or for a nominal permit fee. Non-residents may be assessed a non-resident user fee.

An introductory text and list of all town and park district owned parks with the facilities available at each park is included for each town. The village parks are listed by town with brief information on each village owned park. The Parks and Recreation Offices of the towns and the Village Halls have been included in the text and should be consulted for current fee and permit information and residency requirements.

FEDERAL PARKS

Federal parks are administered by the National Park Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior. The Fire Island National Seashore is the only national park in Suffolk County.

National seashores preserve the natural amenities of shoreline areas and offshore islands, while providing water-oriented recreation opportunities. Fire Island National Seashore possesses outstanding natural qualities and a variety of recreation activities. The barrier beach park lies off the south shore of Long Island encompassing 2,680 acres and extends 32 miles from Robert Moses State Park on the west to Moriches Inlet on the east<sup>1</sup>. The island also contains 17 separate communities which are inhabited by summer residents and are used primarily for recreation.

In 1980 the 7 mile stretch of Fire Island from Smith Point West to Watch Hill, approximately 1,400 acres, was designated by Congress as wilderness, the only area in N.Y.S. to be designated as such. With the exception of the boardwalk trail for the handicapped at Smith Point West, the wilderness is only accessible by foot.

Another highlight of the Fire Island National Seashore is the Sunken Forest located directly west of Sailors Haven. The Sunken Forest is a surprise, it is a forest nestled below the peaks of the dunes, in stark contrast to the seemingly endless miles of beach.

Access.<sup>2</sup>

Access by car to Fire Island National Seashore is limited to the eastern and western ends of the park. Fees are charged for parking in Robert Moses State Park (west end) and in Smith Point County Park (east end).

NEW YORK STATE PARKS

The New York State Park system is administered by twelve regional commissions, encompassing 147 parks. Suffolk County is located in the Long Island Region and contains 18 of the 24 parks in the region.

The state parks provide a variety of activities along its unique shoreline, ranging from swimming and boating to camping and nature study. Robert Moses and Hither Hills State parks on Suffolk's south shore boast some of the most beautiful beaches in the world. The fresh and saltwater marshes, meadows, streams and ponds in Connetquot and Caleb Smith State Parks provide havens for a variety of birds, fish and wildlife. Segments of the Caleb Smith and Connetquot Rivers within these park preserves are also part of the N.Y.S. Wild, Scenic and Recreational River System. The L.I. region has one state historic site, the Walt Whitman Homestead, located in Huntington.<sup>1</sup>

SUFFOLK COUNTY PARKS

The parks owned by Suffolk County are administered by the Suffolk County Department of Parks, Recreation and Conservation. The Parks Department was created by the Board of Supervisors in November of 1966 and began operations with the opening of the Southaven County Park in 1967. At the present time the Parks Department administers 43 parks with more than 17,000 acres of property.

The Suffolk County Park system includes active developed parks as well as undeveloped and/or limited use nature preserve parks. Within the park system Suffolk residents can now enjoy marinas, golf courses, camping areas, wetland and nature preserves, equestrian activities, a marine museum and even a summer camp.

A valid Leisure Pass must be presented at all county parks and beaches before entering the facility. A Leisure Pass can be obtained with proof of Suffolk residency at any county park or from the administration office at West Sayville Golf Course, P.O. Box 144 Montauk Hwy., West Sayville, N.Y. 11796, telephone 567-1700.

Emergency & Safety Information

- °Report emergencies to Coast Guard or Park Rangers via CB radio - CH9 (using proper call signs)
- °A vehicle stuck in the sand can be removed by using a snap line, which works on a "spring" principle. Connect the snap line to a secure part of the vehicle, accelerate the rescue vehicle slowly until snap line becomes taut (the line should stretch almost 1/3 its length), at which time it should "spring" the stuck vehicle free. The vehicle that is stuck should continue efforts to move while being pulled. Do not use a chain or cable for this method of freeing a vehicle. Keep all persons clear of area to avoid injury, should the snap line break.
- °Soft sand will require lower tire pressure. If vehicle strains, lower tire pressure equally. Soft sand is a hazard, so avoid driving at the foot of the dunes, seaward side. Follow the existing tracks on the beach "berm" for best driving.
- °Recommended tire pressure ranges from 12 to 16 lbs., but may vary depending on size & type of vehicle, sand conditions and tire size.
- °Sea Puss, is a name for a common hazardous ocean current running perpendicular to the shoreline. Recognized by its choppiness and usually yellow/brown color, it is narrow in width (20-50 ft.) but can extend as much as a half mile or more. A swimmer caught in a sea puss should swim parallel to the shore, not against the current, until no current pull is felt, and then head diagonally away from the sea puss towards the shore.
- °Surfboards or high-flotation devices are excellent aids to an endangered swimmer. Unless qualified, do not attempt a swimming rescue, instead, throw a line, life jacket, etc. and call for help.

Camping In Suffolk County Parks

A rapidly growing leisure pastime, both on a national and local level, camping is one of the most popular activities within the Suffolk County Parks. Large tracts of scenic woods and fields have been developed into camping areas and, at present, parkland campsites accommodating tents, trailers, recreational vehicles and organized groups total close to 1,000! Blydenburgh, Southaven, Smith Point, Indian Island, Sears Bellows, and Cedar Point Park offer facilities (but no hook-ups) for tent, trailer or vehicular campers. Organized youth groups and other group organizations may also camp at West Hills and our largest camping area, (up to 2,000 persons) Cathedral Pines. Camping season generally runs from the first Friday in April to the last Thursday in October, with Indian Island and Smith Point open on a year-round basis. Campers are reminded that a maximum stay of seven consecutive days is allowed and, except for groups reserving 10 units or more, all sites are available on a first come, first served basis to county residents.

BICYCLING

Rules of the Road

Your bicycling becomes safer when you obey the traffic laws. This helps other drivers, and pedestrians, understand what you may do next. By making your own actions predictable, it becomes safer for you. According to New York State Law, you must:

1. Obey all traffic signs, signals, and pavement markings. When you enter a roadway by going over a curb or from a private road, an alley, or a driveway, you must come to a complete stop. Each time you turn or stop, you must use the standard hand signals.

2. Ride with traffic and keep as far to the right as you can safely ride. Except to avoid conditions that would make riding on the right unsafe, or when getting ready to make a left turn, you must not interfere with the traffic flow. If there is a usable bicycle path, bicycle lane, or shoulder next to the road, you must use it. It is not safe to ride facing traffic.

3. Keep in single file when you are overtaken by another vehicle. Except while using a bicycle path, it is not legal for more than two cyclists to ride side-by-side at any time.

4. Keep at least one hand on the handlebars and both feet on the pedals while your bicycle is moving. Never hold on to or attach to another moving vehicle.

5. Make sure there is an attached seat for each person on the bicycle. "Double riding" is not legal, and it's not safe.

6. Obey all local laws and regulations. These may include registration, inspection, not riding on sidewalks, and others.

Keep In Mind - When you ride in traffic, be sure other drivers actually see you--don't assume they can. Get in position to be seen and to see them.

1. Always wear light colored clothing. If you ride at night, you must use the proper lights--these are required by law to help motorists see you. (See "Required Equipment"). To be seen better, use reflectors or reflective tape on your clothing. A light colored bicycle helmet or one with reflective spots or strips can also help you be noticed.

2. Keep out of "blind spots" where you can't be seen. Be ready for parked vehicles to suddenly pull in front of you. Watch for children to dart out between them.

3. Be very careful at intersections. Nearly three-fourths of all traffic accidents involving bicycles occur there. Know where vehicles are behind you, especially when you want to turn left. And, expect every passing motorist to turn in front of you. Although you'll have your own "blind spots" to check, a rearview mirror can help you keep an eye on the traffic behind.

4. Always leave room for defensive action. Look ahead to avoid drain or sewer grates, pot holes, puddles, icy spots, soft shoulders, dogs, etc.

5. Get the attention of other drivers and pedestrians even if you have to yell loudly. If you're not sure they have seen you, they probably haven't.

Required Equipment

You can also bicycle more safely by using the proper equipment.

According to State law, any bicycle you drive on a street or highway must have:

1. A bell, horn or other device (but not a siren or whistle) which can be heard at least 100 feet away.
2. A brake strong enough to skid the braked wheel on dry, level, clean pavement.
3. And, when in use between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise, a white headlight visible from 500 feet to the front and a red taillight visible from 300 feet to the rear. At least one of these lights must be visible for 200 feet from each side.

Under State and/or Federal Regulations, New Bicycles Sold by Dealers Must Have:

1. Reflectorized tires or sideangle spoke mounted reflectors on each wheel. If reflectors are used, they must be colorless or amber on the front and colorless or red on the rear wheel.
2. Colorless or amber pedal reflectors on both the front and rear surfaces of the pedals.
3. A colorless wide-angle reflector on the front of the frame.
4. A red wide-angle reflector on the rear of the frame.

Bicycle Care

It's safer to operate your bicycle when it can be easily controlled. The "fit" of a bicycle, and its physical condition, affects your balance and your ability to steer safely.

1. For a good "fit", you should be able to rest your feet comfortably on the pedals at their lowest point, without shifting your position on the seat. The pedals should not be loose but should freely rotate. Replace any worn or missing treads.
2. Adjust the seat height and seat angle for comfort and a better "fit". For safety reasons, at least two inches of the seat post should remain in the bicycle frame's seat tube.
3. You should also easily reach the handlebars from the seated position. Again, for safety, at least two inches of the handlebar stem should remain in the bicycle frame's headset. Worn, loose, or missing hand grips or tapes should be replaced.
4. Any load carried on your back can make your steering awkward, uncomfortable, and dangerous. For better stability, carry your packages by securing them low and near the middle of the frame. If you transport a child, provide an attached child seat or carrier--it is not safe to use a backpack.
5. Your steering will also be affected when you use a bicycle trailer. You need more room to turn, and a much longer distance to stop. If you ride at night, use extra reflectors on both yourself and the trailer.
6. Inflate each tire to its correct pressure, and change any tire which is damaged or badly worn. Replace the broken or missing spokes on each wheel, and adjust them for proper tension. Any warped or bent wheels should be replaced or repaired.
7. The brakes should meet the legal requirements (See "Required Equipment"). Frequently inspect the brake and shift cables for wear. If your bicycle has coaster brakes, also check the chain for proper tension and replace any weak links.
8. Keep these parts lubricated and in good working order: brake cables; chain; coaster brake; fork bearings; front and rear sprockets; pedal bearings; shift cables; and, wheel bearings. If you decide not to do your own maintenance, consider taking your bicycle to a competent bicycle repair shop.

Lock It or Lose It - Your bicycle can provide low-cost, efficient transportation. But you could find it expensive or difficult to replace.

Safe Cycling Includes Theft Prevention:

1. Know your community. Learn its danger spots, and where your bicycle could get stolen. Avoid these areas or take extra care.
2. Always lock your bicycle before you leave it. Keep it in the open or in a public place where it can be easily seen.
3. Use a heavy duty "U-bolt" lock or a hardened steel lock. If you use a cable or chain, it should be at least 3/8 inch thick and made of hardened steel.
4. For better protection, lock your bicycle through both wheel and the frame to a telephone pole, a strong bike rack, an iron fence, or another stationary object. A parking meter is not a good choice--your bicycle may be lifted right over the top!
5. Never leave your bicycle outside during the night.
6. Keep a clear photograph of your bicycle, and a record of its serial number in a safe place. If your bicycle becomes stolen, this could help it be identified. Your bicycle's recovery may also be easier if you can register your bicycle with your local community.

It's Up To You - You are required by law to operate in a safe manner whenever you bicycle on a publicly used road or highway. Like other drivers, you can be issued traffic tickets if you disobey the law. You can also be held legally liable for any accidents you may cause.

For Safer Bicycling:

1. Obey the "Rules of the Road" and the local laws.
2. Ride so you can see and be seen by others.
3. Drive defensively, especially when you enter traffic and when you near an intersection.
4. Be sure your bicycle "fits" and is properly equipped.
5. Guard against bicycle theft.

BOATING

Suffolk County is a boaters paradise. You can sail, motor or row and you can do it in a bay, sound, ocean, river or lake. There were 50,288 boats registered in Suffolk County in 1983.

The public marinas and launching ramps are indicated on the parks inventories in the parks section of this volume. In addition to the public facilities, there are at least 230 private yacht clubs and marinas along the shores of Suffolk County. A good source for listings of the marinas, restaurants and other marine services found in Suffolk County is the Boating Almanac, Volume II. The Almanac is sold through local bookstores, at many marinas, or by mail from:

Boating Almanac
203 McKinsey Road
Severna Park, MD, 21146
(301)647-0084

If you do not own a boat, many local marinas have boats for rent. There are row boats, canoes, hobi cats, sailboats and yachts available for rent from private boat rental establishments.

Safety Courses

Local U.S. Coast Guard auxiliaries offer small boating safety courses, as well as a Courtesy Motorboat Examination to assure safe conditions on power boats.

Children aged 10-16 must be certified to operate a motorboat alone in N.Y.S. Free courses are offered by the N.Y.S. Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation, for youngsters to obtain authorization. Similar boating safety certificates issued by other states are accepted for operation on N.Y.S. waterways. For details contact:

United States Power Squadrons:

The USPS is a private self-supporting organization, non-military, non-political and non-profit, dedicated to fun and safety afloat through education.

Local squadrons of USPS provide:

1. Free 10 lesson Boating Courses, usually offered twice annually to men, women and youngsters 12 years of age or older. Owning a boat is not a prerequisite for enrolling.
2. Continuous reporting of corrections or deficiencies in NOAA nautical charts. Since 1962 when NOAA invited the USPS in a cooperative agreement with Chart members of NOAA, the USPS has contributed more than 100,000 items to nautical charts.
3. Working with the Coast Guard, C.G. Auxiliary, Red Cross, Yacht Clubs and other concerned organizations, USPS helps to maintain an awareness of safety during Safe Boating Week as well as throughout the year.

Most USPS Squadrons offer the free Boating Course twice yearly - in the spring and fall. Times and places of these courses are publicized locally in newspapers and other media, or by calling for further information the USPS District Education Officer listed below for your area.

Pump-out Regulations

It's the law...that sewage must not be discharged from water craft without treatment. Private and public pump-out facilities in Suffolk are listed in an Environmental Conservation (NYSDEC) map for the Long Island area. Contact the NYSDEC offices for copies.

Weather Information

The National Weather Service of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) provides marine weather forecasts as well as special warnings. The NOAA Weather Radio broadcasts (VHF-FM) 24 hours a day and includes weather radar summaries, tides, marine weather warnings, and regional and local forecasts and warnings. Broadcast tapes are updated every three to six hours and amended as required.

Boaters on eastern Long Island water can tune to 162.55 MHz (KHB-47) on VHF-FM (NOAA Weather Radio) for continuous broadcasts from New London, Connecticut, Meriden, Connecticut 162.40 (WXJ-42). A new weather station specifically serving eastern Long Island is anticipated to broadcast on a frequency (162.450) by 1984. These stations can usually be received 20 to 40 miles from the transmitting site, depending on terrain and receiver quality.

Whenever a severe local storm or strong wind of brief duration is imminent and has not been covered by existing warnings or advisories, a Special Marine Warning Bulletin will be issued. No visual displays will be used but boaters will be able to receive these warnings on NOAA Weather Radio or Coast Guard and commercial radio stations that transmit marine weather information. Commercial stations in Sag Harbor, Hampton Bays, Southampton, Riverhead, Babylon, Huntington and Patchogue regularly broadcast marine weather forecasts.

Ice Boating

Ice boating is a winter sport that can be pursued on Lake Ronkonkoma or the Great South Bay, weather permitting. Many Suffolk residents enjoy the fast (boat speeds up to four times the wind speed), cold, rough riding experience. This is one of those activities you can enjoy by participation or observation.

Ferry Service

Sometimes getting there is half the fun and a ferry trip is transportation as well as an enjoyable boatripe.

Access to some Fire Island beaches is easiest by ferry. Most of the Fire Island ferries run daily during the summer and on weekends during the spring and fall.

The Port Jefferson to Bridgeport ferry provides year round service and can accommodate automobiles as well as walk on passengers. This ferry also runs night excursions such as the cruise to nowhere on the Sound and junkets to Bridgeport for Jai alai.

FISHING

Salt Water Fishing:

Suffolk's waters offer excitement and challenge to every saltwater angler. Listed below are the types of salt water fish most likely to be caught by an angler by month. This information was extracted from "Salt Water Fishing on Long Island" a brochure compiled by the N.Y.S. Dept. of Environmental Conservation.

January and February: Few boats, open or charter, operate. Those that do usually sail weekends and holidays only. Cod is the main species sought, although whiting (silver hake), herring and red hake (ling) also will be caught. Likely ports are Captree State Park and Montauk.

March, April and May: Cod, pollock and large winter flounder ("snowshoes") are sought by anglers aboard Montauk berthed open and charter boats. Winter flounder will provide action through mid May (even to mid June in some years) for anglers aboard most of the open and charter boats from other ports, for those using rental boat stations, and for bank and pier anglers. Popular ports for open and charter boat anglers include: Captree State Park, Greenport, Port Jefferson and Huntington. Rental boat stations may be found at Amityville, Babylon, West Sayville, Mastic Beach, East Moriches, Hampton Bays, Sag Harbor, Three Mile Harbor, Montauk, Orient Point, Southold, Mattituck Inlet, New Suffolk, Mt. Sinai Harbor, Port Jefferson, Kings Park and many other villages along Long Island Sound and the south shore bays. Among the more popular bank and pier fishing areas are the banks of the Shinnecock Canal and the fishing piers at Captree and Robert Moses State Parks.

Boats berthed at Captree State Park seek cod (along with whiting and ling) and switch to mackerel in mid or late April and early May. Some other Captree berthed open boats switch to weakfish about mid May. Summer flounder (fluke) fishing can start as early as mid May for the Captree fleet. Mid to late May also sees the beginning of scup (porgies) in the Peconics and northern puffer (blowfish) in the south shore bays.

Tomcod may add a little variety to winter flounder catches in late March through April for anglers fishing the Quogue Canal and western Tiana Bay on the south shore and in some of the harbors of the western Sound. Smelt (although quite scarce in recent years) may show in a few north shore tidal streams in March. White perch will provide some early spring (March-April) action in some of the larger rivers emptying into the south shore bays. Striped bass usually start showing in the surf of the south shore beaches in late April. The spring run generally peaks in May. A few stripers may be caught as early as late March in western Long Island Sound.

June: Early in the month, anglers fishing from open boats at Montauk will continue to catch cod, pollock and winter flounder. About mid-month, black sea bass, scup (porgies) and summer flounder (fluke) will become important at Montauk. The charter boat fleet there begins to work on bluefish and striped bass. Several charter boats from Montauk will fish exclusively for sharks from June through October. Greenport open and charter boats fish for porgies and weakfish, some large blackfish (tautog) may also be taken. There may be a few bluefish caught out of Port Jefferson late in the month, otherwise boats from that port will concentrate on porgies, blackfish, flounder and fluke. Anglers fishing from Captree State Park, open and charter boats, and from rental boats throughout the south shore bays, are after fluke (summer flounder) and weakfish. Porgies and weakfish form the bulk of the catches for rental boat anglers in the Peconics. Bank and pier fishing along the south shore is for fluke, weakfish, blowfish, kingfish, winter flounder, and blackfish. Bluefish, kingfish and blowfish will join striped bass in the surf fisherman's catches. North shore bank fishermen will be taking a mixed bag of flounder, blackfish, striped bass and bluefish. Shark fishing out of several south shore ports begins this month and lasts through October. Blue shark, shortfin mako and dusky shark will be the most frequently caught sharks.

July and August: Most anglers aboard Montauk open boats will take home fluke, porgies and sea bass. A few boats from this port will take their fishermen to Cox's Lodge and Block Island for cod all summer long. Although, bluefish will be the main support of charter boat anglers from all ports, some tuna will be taken by anglers chartering boats from Hampton Bays and Montauk. Fluke fishing continues throughout the south shore bays. Some good catches of weakfish may be made near Heckscher State Park. Porgies, with kingfish and weakfish dominate fishing in the Peconics. Anglers on Port Jefferson based boats will hit good schools of bluefish from time to time now through late September. On days when bluefish are not to be found, fluke, porgies and blackfish will provide a willing substitute. "Snappers" (young bluefish) will support the bank and pier fishery in August. Surf fishing on the south shore and bank fishing on the north shore will be similar to June. Charter boats from Greenport will concentrate on large bluefish and striped bass from now through November. Open boats based there will concentrate on fluke, porgies and weakfish.

September: Porgy fishing aboard Montauk open boats is usually at its best this month. Striped bass begin to be more frequent in the catches of anglers fishing from charter boats from all ports. From now through mid-November big blackfish near Orient Point will be sought by rental boat fishermen and fishermen aboard Greenport open boats. Blackfish and bluefish will dominate the catches from other north shore ports. Anglers fishing from Captree will be taking mixed bags of several species.

Blackfish angling becomes good late in the month through November on all the artificial reefs on the south shore. "Snapper" fishing is at its best for the bank and pier fishermen during the first half of the month. Striped bass becomes more frequent in the surf fishermen's bag.

October: Open boat anglers at Montauk may take some porgies, but cod will become the main objective there. Charter boat anglers from this port will find striped bass fishing at its best. Anglers using the Captree open boats and rental boats throughout all of Long Island will be catching winter flounder, as will bank and pier fishermen. A few bluefish and occasionally large schools of tuna will be good this month at Montauk and along the south shore. North shore bank fishermen will also do well at some spots for stripers.

November: The best fishing will be for codfish at Montauk, winter flounder at Captree and throughout Long Island, and big blackfish and a few cod near Orient Point. Some striped bass will be taken by charter boat fishermen from all ports. Bank and pier fishing for winter flounder should be at or near its best. Surf fishing will probably taper off about mid-month.

December: Cod will be the prime objective of most boat fishermen from all ports. Nearly all fishing will be done on weekends. Some rental boat stations may have a few boats still in the water for winter flounder fishermen early in the month. If the weather is good in the first week or so of the month, the rental boat station near Orient Point may stay open to provide some good fishing for blackfish with a few cod thrown in for good measure. Bank fishing is almost exclusively for flounder.

Two fish-spotting aids are DEC's maps, "Major Marine Sport Fishing Access Areas in Suffolk County," which outlines the facilities available at 37 locations, and "Artificial Reef Sites," which details the composition of six such reefs on Long Island's south shore, complete with notes on species to be found at each site in various seasons.

Both maps and free copies of the monthly "Long Island Outdoors" are published by Long Island Anglers, Inc. P.O. Box A-368, Wantagh, N.Y. 11793 (516 364-9182 or 516 799-1855).

For up-to-date information on tide tables and fishing tips, "The Long Island Fisherman" is available weekly on local newsstands or from the publisher, L.I.F. Building, Bridge Street, P.O. Box 1994, Sag Harbor, N.Y. 11963. The monthly "Salt Water Sportsman" regularly features articles on Long Island fishing and is published by the Salt Water Sportsman, Inc. 186 Lincoln Street, Boston, Mass. 02111.

So from pier, jetty, beach or boat, enjoy the thrills of Suffolk's own special brand of saltwater fishing excitement. Even that one that got away will look better than ever!

Party or Charter Boat Fishing:

Everyone is an expert when fishing from the deck of a charter or party boat. It is the easiest and often the most satisfying way for beginners to get started. Veterans can also expand their fishing knowledge.

Depending on the season, you can fish for cod, mackerel, fluke, flounder, weakfish, bluefish, striped bass, blackfish or porgies. You can tangle with sharp-toothed sharks or wrestle with a giant tuna twice your size. Fishing alternatives include half-day or all day trips, at dawn or dusk and even during the night, on sheltered bays or on open waters.

Party boats, often called open or head boats, are open to the public with advance reservations not generally required or accepted. The boats leave their berths at scheduled times; to go fishing all you have to do is get aboard before sailing time. Most are big boats (65 to 75 feet) carrying 35 to 80 passengers. It doesn't matter whether you know how to catch a fish or even if you have your own fishing rod. On open boats the mates will show you what to do and provide a fishing rod for a small fee. The only things you really need to bring with you are your lunch (only a few of the largest open boats serve food, though most sell beer and soda) and appropriate clothing. If it's cold or windy, a warm jacket, a woolen cap and cotton work gloves are advised. The sailing times are listed in area newspapers, advertisements, angling tabloids and Chambers of Commerce. These vessels operate out of the following ports: Greenport, Hampton Bays, Sag Harbor, Montauk, Port Jefferson, Captree, Babylon, Bay Shore, Huntington Harbor and Lindenhurst.

Most charter boats are less than 40 feet long and licensed to carry no more than six passengers. There are some larger charter boats that cater to fishing clubs and group outings that carry between 25 and 50 passengers. Charter trips are usually arranged well in advance by a group for a specific day through a chartering service or directly with the captain. At Montauk, which has the greatest collection of charter boats on the Island, it is often possible to charter on short notice or to arrange a "split charter" - sharing the boat and costs with other anglers through a chartering service. Charter costs vary widely from port to port according to the type of fishing trip planned. Charter boats operate out of many Suffolk ports including Captree, Babylon, Bay Shore, Greenport, Hampton Bays, Huntington, Lindenhurst, Mattituck, Montauk, Moriches, and Port Jefferson.

If your stomach rocks when the boat rolls, or if you're taking youngsters out on their first fishing trip, it's often better to pick an open boat. Long Island Sound and the Peconic Bays are normally calm except when the wind blows hard out of the northeast or northwest. Typically you can fish for flounder, fluke, weakfish, bluefish, blackfish and porgies in those waters without worrying about waves.

And at the end of the day, don't forget to tip the mate. Cleaning fish is not a free service provided by the boat. If the mate cleans your catch, expect to pay extra for the work. On charter boats, the mate often expects a tip equal to 10 or 15 percent of the charter cost.

Shellfishing:

Shellfish or mollusks, are those animals having a soft body protected by a shell. These include clams, mussels, scallops and oysters. The recreational harvesting of these animals from Suffolk's waters is regulated by both New York State (through the Department of Environmental Conservation) and individual towns.

The minimum size limits of shellfish which may be taken from New York State waters are:

- Hard Clams.....less than one inch in thickness shall not be taken, possessed, bought, sold or otherwise trafficked in.
- Soft Clams.....less than one and one-half inches in the longest diameter shall not be taken, possessed, bought, sold or otherwise trafficked in.
- Surf Clams.....(also known as Skimmer Clams) less than 3 1/2 inches in the longest diameter, shall not be taken, possessed, bought or sold.

Scallops.....only Bay Scallops having an annual growth line or measuring not less than 2 1/4 inches from the middle of the hinge to the middle of the bill may be taken.
Blue Mussell.....no regulations.
All Clams.....no more than one-half bushel in aggregate may be taken.

Towns can enact regulations more restrictive than the state. To recreationally harvest shellfish from town-owned lands in Southold; Shelter Island; Southampton and East Hampton you must observe restrictions, copies of these are available from the Town Supervisor's office. Riverhead Town has no specific regulations or permits which are required of recreational harvesters.

Before harvesting any shellfish from Suffolk's waters, the town in which you will be fishing should be contacted for complete information.

Freshwater Fishing:

Virtually everyone over age 16, resident or non-resident, needs a license to fish New York's fresh waters. Some residents may be eligible for free (age 70 and over) or reduced fee (ages 65 to 69) licenses.

The blind, certain members of Indian tribes and veterans with 40 percent or greater service-connected disability may receive free licenses. Details may be obtained from any DEC regional office.

Licenses are available at:

- °DEC regional offices
- °Town and county clerks
- °Many sporting goods stores, bait shops and similar outlets
- °Some state campgrounds

Shops and campgrounds that don't sell licenses usually can direct you to a nearby license-issuing agent.

Save time and effort by obtaining your license by mail. This is particularly convenient if you are traveling to New York from out of state. Mail order applications may be obtained by writing: NYS DEC, 50 Wolf Road, Room 111, Albany, N.Y. 12233

DEC regional offices can help you enjoy your fishing trip. Call for license information, local fishing conditions, stocking lists, availability of guide services and tips on smaller waters. N.Y.S. DEC Region 1 & 2, Building 40 -- SUNY, Stony Brook, N.Y. 11794, (516)751-7900

Almost every large body of freshwater in Suffolk County is bordered by or is incorporated into publically owned parkland. The Caleb Smith and Connetquot River State parks, bordering the Nissequogue and Connetquot Rivers, are open for fresh water fishing by appointment. Freshwater fishermen fishing on county parkland must have N.Y.S. fishing license and abide by the N.Y.S. laws. The Carmen's River which runs through the Southaven County Park, can be fished daily from April 1 to Sept. 30 after paying a $1.00 parkland user fee.

Safe Trekking:

Hiking can be healthful and fun; but like any intensive outdoor activity comes with inherent and severe dangers.

To insure your safe trip:

°Start small...or on a short trail.

°Never hike alone.

°Leave a record of your projected itinerary.

°Stay on the marked trail.

°Carry a compass, map and trail guide--and know how to use them.

°Be prepared for quick temperature drops, rain, or even snow, which can fall in summer at high altitudes.

°Wear rubber-soled walking shoes or ankle-high hiking boots.

°Carry a first aid kit, insect repellent, an extra pair of socks, a flashlight, waterproof matches, and a small campstove.

Hiking courtesy is important too. Leave no litter--"Pack it in. Pack it out."

Even in remote areas, some trails cross private land. To insure continuing access, follow all landowner's rules on use.

Hypothermia--The Hiker's Foe

Hypothermia--the loss of body heat faster than it can be produced--can be a threat in any season. It can kill even the healthiest hiker.

Do not ignore the subtle symptoms of hypothermia, which include shivering and undue stumbling. Stop Immediately. Put on dry clothes. Drink warm, non-alcoholic beverages. In advanced stages, hot fluids and skin-to-skin rewarming are essential for survival.

Hunting in Suffolk

Squirrel, pheasant, quail, cottontail rabbits, puddle ducks, diving ducks, Canada Geese, sea ducks and deer are the types of game available in Suffolk County for hunting.

Upland hunting is restricted to state administered cooperative hunting areas. Public boat launching sites provide access to water. The hunting season for deer by longbow is allowed in December and shotgun deer hunting is permitted for two weeks in January. The approximate seasons for small game are: Ruffed Grouse, Quail & Ringnecked Pheasant (Nov., Dec.), Cottontail Rabbit and Gray Squirrel (Nov. to Feb.), Woodcock (Oct. to mid Nov.), and waterfowl (end of Sept. to mid Jan.). For specific dates contact NYSDEC at 751-7900 X232.

Small Game Hunting License - (The New York license year is Oct. 1 - Sept. 30).

The minimum age for small game hunting in New York is 14. The 14 or 15 year old hunter must have a proper license or show proof of having passed a certified hunter training course in his state of residence. He may hunt only when accompanied by parent, guardian or designated person 18 or over who also has a current New York State license to hunt.

All residents and non-residents over 16 may hunt alone and must have a hunting license; there are a few exceptions but they pertain only to

*There are many private indoor ranges throughout Suffolk County. Clubs should contact their local school district which may also have an indoor range.

New York State residents. If you're from out-of-State, you may purchase a non-resident license only if you show proof of a previous license either by showing the license itself or an affidavit from an issuing agent. If you've never had a license, proof of hunter-training is necessary.

Don't forget - everyone 16 or over must have a Federal migratory bird stamp, as well as the small game license, in order to legally hunt waterfowl. The stamp may be purchased for $7.50 from most Post Offices. The Federal stamp is not needed to hunt woodcock, snipe or rails.

Department of Environmental Conservation regional offices, Town and County Clerks and many sporting goods stores sell licenses. The easiest way for the out-of-stater to get one is to apply by mail. Send application requests to:

NYS Department of Environmental Conservation
50 Wolf Road - Room 111
Albany, New York 12233

Handguns

A New York State Pistol Permit is required to carry a handgun in this State. These are issued only to residents of the State. There is no provision for honoring permits issued by other states.

Big Game Hunting License - (The New York license year is October 1 - September 30. Keep this in mind when planning September hunts!)

License to hunt with a firearm (minimum age, 16):

Age 16-17; must show proof of:

1. having been issued a license in a previous year, or
2. show a hunter training certificate issued in his State of residence.

He may hunt only when accompanied by a licensed big game hunter who is at least 18 years old.

Age 18 (or over): Subject to the same proof of qualification as (1) or (2) above, and may hunt alone.

Bowhunting: A Bowhunting Stamp must be purchased in addition to the Big Game license to participate in the Archery Season. To acquire a Stamp, one must show a New York State issued (or honored) Bowhunter Training Certificate.

*Age 14-15: May hunt only during the Archery Seasons, and must be accompanied by a legal bowhunter 18 years of age, or older. Junior Archery license is required.

Age 16-17: May hunt during any season for which the bow is a legal instrument and must be accompanied by a legal bowhunter 18 years of age, or older. Stamp requirement for the Archery Season applies.

Age 18+: Bowhunting Stamp required; may hunt alone. A stamp is not required if you use your bow during the regular big game season, but regular season regulations apply.

*Only New York residents qualify in this category.

Muzzleloading: A Muzzleloading Stamp is required, in addition to the Big Game license, in order to participate in the Muzzleloading Season. A Stamp is not required if you elect to use your muzzleloader during the regular season, but regular season regulations apply.

Department of Environmental Conservation regional offices, Town and County Clerks and many sporting goods stores sell licenses. The easiest way for the out-of-stateer to get one is to apply by mail. Send application requests to:

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation
50 Wolf Road - Room 111
Albany, New York 12233

Handguns

A New York State Pistol Permit is required to carry a handgun in this State. A pistol permit is also required to hunt with muzzleloading pistols. These are issued only to residents of the State. There is no provision for honoring permits issued by other states.

Big Game Hunting Map/Guide is available free for the asking from DEC. This brochure gives you all the details on big game hunting regulations, pinpoints all public lands and locates specific public hunting areas (State Parks, Wildlife Management Areas, Landowner-hunter Cooperative Areas) which are open for deer hunting - and much more. An absolute must if you're serious about big game hunting in New York.

Care of Game

The size of deer and bear and the insulating qualities of their coats make it imperative that you dress them properly and allow the meat to cool as rapidly as possible. This becomes extremely important during the milder weather of early hunting seasons.

If you don't know how to butcher, learn from someone who does, or have the animal butchered by a professional.

Remember that bear meat, like pork, must be fully cooked.

Informational leaflets on care of game, butchering and cooking are available, free, by writing DEC.

Tips on Waterfowl Hunting

As a waterfowl hunter, you know the basic gear you need. But as a first-timer in this State, there are a few things you should know.

1. The bigger lakes and rivers, as well as the saltwater bays, can get plenty rough, particularly during a later season -- even along the edges. If you're planning this kind of hunt, have nothing less than a good, sturdy broad-beamed 14-ft. boat with a minimum 7.5 HP motor. Even then, check the weather before you go out.

2. There are many acres of prime wetlands in public ownership in Suffolk. Most of it is open to public hunting on a controlled basis. Be sure you know the control conditions of the area you select, if a public area is your choice.

3. It's always good to establish some contacts where the shoreline of the area you hunt is predominantly private land.

4. Don't forget that in some areas, steelshot only is required. Check with the Regional Manager on specific areas in the region you wish to hunt.

5. Another "unforgettable" - Federal duck stamp and plug in your gun. We want you here - but legal. And we've an excellent Law Enforcement staff to prove it.

Public Shooting Areas

Spring Farm Shooting Preserve - Clay Pitts Road, Sag Harbor.
Pheasant, mallard, quail, chukar partridge, sale of chicks, eggs, mature birds. 725-0038

Where to Hunt

Suffolk County Parks - Only county residents are permitted to hunt in Suffolk parks, with the exception of duck hunting at Southaven. The cost for upland and scooter hunting is $3 per day per person and for duck and deer, $5.00 per day per person. Call the department of parks and recreation for further information at 567-1700.

Type of Hunting	County Park(s)
Scooter	Cedar Point
Upland	Montauk, Smith Point, Sears Bellows
Duck	Southaven, Sears Bellows, Cedar Point, Montauk

Suffolk Ridge-Middle Island Area Cooperative Hunting and U.S. Navy Cooperative - Areas are operated through a check station at the Mid-Island Conservation Center, Randall Road, Ridge. Hunter must relinquish license and obtain permit at check station. There is $1 charge per day on the Navy property, but hunting is free in other co-op areas. Reservations are required for hunting on opening day, weekends and holidays. During the week, hunting is first-come, first-served and permits are issued daily. Map and regulations available. ## RECREATION AND LEISURE ACTIVITIES

The opportunities for recreation, craft making and the pursuit of hobbies are seemingly endless in Suffolk County. The following information will give the reader a start in finding an enjoyable recreational interest.

The list of colleges is provided because many colleges offer continuing education courses in history, art, music, sports, etc. School Districts sponsor two semesters of adult education classes for residents and non-residents (at an increased fee). Courses include calligraphy, computers, golf, guitar, jazz aerobics, oil painting, flower arranging, dancing, woodworking, needlecrafts, cooking, photography, astrology, casino gambling and much more. Most districts advise their residents of the course offerings in a general mailing to all postal patrons in the district.

The BOCES districts provide evening courses for the fall and spring semesters which have a professional and/or recreational bent. The BOCES brochures are also mailed to all postal patrons of their district. The fees for BOCES courses are usually higher than the adult education courses and may result in the student earning a certificate upon successful completion of the course.

The town recreation departments offer recreation opportunities for their residents. In most instances, brochures are issued seasonally and contain the programs offered for that season. The recreation departments sponsor many sports related activities such as softball, volleyball, and other sports leagues, swimming instructions, camp programs, golf and tennis clinics and running marathons. The recreation departments may also sponsor bus trips to New York City and other destinations. Recreation Departments also conduct craft and hobby classes.

Local libraries are listed because the libraries are an excellent resource of recreational opportunities and provide their own programs as well. Many libraries have children's programs as well as guest lecturers on subjects of interest to their patrons.

A list of the newspapers published in Suffolk is included. Local newspapers are excellent resources for recreation and leisure time activities. The newspapers report the dates, times and locations of activities as well as fees and descriptions of the activities.

A list of attractions such as a commercial zoo and an amusement park, has been included with a brief description of each facility. The list of attractions is in addition to museums, galleries, historic sites, and other points of interest listed elsewhere in this volume.

And finally, for those who like to shop, there are lists of malls, shopping centers, central business districts and farmstands located throughout the county.

SHOPPING

If you like to shop, there is something for everyone in Suffolk County. For a leisurely day shopping trip there are the tourist-oriented business districts with quaint shops and elegant eateries.

Bargain hunters can comb the area flea markets and factory outlets, or can attend a spirited auction. Check local newspapers for locations and dates.

There are also five regional shopping malls, 31 community shopping centers and 123 neighborhood center. Major New York City department stores have branches in the regional malls and in some central business districts.

During the spring, summer and fall, there are many roadside farm stands with fresh local produce for sale. In June the strawberries are ripe and many farmers will let you pick your own. October fields have pumpkins ready for picking.

Suffolk County is a great place to shop.

LODGING

The number of motels and hotels in Suffolk has been changing in recent years. Many motels located in the eastern towns of the county have been converting to cooperatives or time-sharing condominiums. The coops and condominiums have been indicated on the following list. They were not excluded from the lodging inventory because even though the ownership of the units may have changed, the units may still be available for a lodging rental.

Bed and Breakfast Services listing accommodations in private homes throughout Suffolk County are a recent addition to Suffolk's lodging opportunities. The Bed and Breakfast Services are: Alternate Lodging, Inc., P.O. Box 1782, East Hampton, N.Y. 11937 (516)324-9449, Hampton Bed and Breakfast, P.O. Box 378, East Moriches, N.Y. 11940 516-878-8197 and A Reasonable Alternative, Inc., Bed and Breakfast on L.I., 117 Spring Street, Port Jefferson, N.Y. 11777 (516)928-4034.

The following list is an inventory of motels and hotels located within Suffolk County. The inclusion of a facility on this list is not an endorsement of that facility, it is merely a statement of the facility's existence in 1981.

NATIONAL NATURAL LANDMARK PROGRAM: DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR<sup>1</sup>

The objectives of the National Natural Landmark Program are:

1. to encourage the preservation of sites illustrating the geological and ecological character of the U.S.,
2. to enhance the education and scientific value of sites thus preserved,
3. to strengthen cultural appreciation of natural history,
4. to foster a greater concern in the conservation of the nation's Natural heritage.

The N.P.S. has compiled a list of themes as criteria for selection of Natural Areas including:

- land forms of the present
- geological history of the earth
- land ecosystems
- aquatic ecosystems

Anyone may apply to have a site considered for registry. Each site is evaluated and reviewed by the Advisory Board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings and Monuments. Upon the Secretary's approval of a site, the owner is invited to apply for a certificate and/or bronze plaque designating the site as a registered natural landmark. In requesting registration, the owner agrees to comply with basic conservation practices relating to management and protection. If these practices are abused, the NPS can revoke the Natural Landmark status.

Under this program, the National Park Service provides recognition of the sites but does not administer or maintain them. The only potential protection provided by the DOI is in the review process of federally funded projects which may affect the site, in which case the Dept. has the option to disapprove the projects application.

National Park Service: Natural Landmarks<sup>2</sup>

Site	Location	Description
Big Reed Pond	near Montauk Pt.	The pond is the eastern most terminus of fresh water on L.I. It provides an unusual ecological situation considering it lies in a region consisting mostly of brackish marshes and ponds.
Gardiner's Island	Suffolk County	The island provides several important natural features including breeding grounds for ospreys, virgin oak woods & estaurine ponds.
Long Beach Orient St. Park	near Orient	One of the finest remaining examples in N.Y. of a sandgravel spit illustrating succession from salt marsh to maritime forest. The area contains a breeding colony of common and roseate terns, species which are becoming scarce in other North Atlantic breeding grounds.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR: FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service administers six refuges providing 2,908 acres of nesting, feeding and resting areas for all forms of wildlife. Management programs, including the restoration of valuable wetlands and the production of feed crops, are primarily devoted to waterfowl. Visitors are welcome to observe and photograph wild animals and birds in their natural habitat, and fishing and hunting are permitted at some refuges but are governed by special rules and regulations.
